Minh may form government

Huong clears way for new regime

SAIGON (AP) — President Tran Van Huong, rejected by the Communists as a negotiating partner, offered today to resign to enable the National Assembly to name Gen. Duong Van "Big" Minh as a neutralist president.

As the assembly began an urgent debate on Huong's offer, the military command reported shelling attacks south and west of the capital but no major fighting.

The Viet Cong delegation at its weekly news conference refused to say whether they would enter into peace talks with Minh, but the retired general is believed to be acceptable to them.

Sources close to Minh said if he became president he would call for an immediate ceasefire and appoint a "cabinet of reconciliation."

In Washington, U.S. officials said a cease-fire in Vietnam and the start of peace negotiations could come early next week. It was learned that Huong's offer to quit was worked out by Saigon leaders and U.S. Ambassador Graham Martin.

Huong, 71, succeeded to the presidency last Monday when Nguyen Van Thieu resigned in an effort to clear the way for peace talks with the Communists, whose forces have overrun three-fourths of South Vietnam and are in position to take Saigon.

But the Viet Cong rejected Huong as a puppet of Thieu and demanded a complete change of government.

A news blackout from Cambodia continued on the last day of a three-day celebration of the capture of Phnom Penh by the Communist-led Khmer Rouge.

South Vietnam's battlefields remained quiet today. The Saigon command reported shelling at Tay Ninh and Trang Bang northwest of the capital and at an air field in the Mekong Delta to the south. It reported no casualties.

The command also reported three ground engagements south of Saigon and listed 68 North Vietnamese and four government troops killed.

It is generally conceded that North Vietnamese troops massed around the capital could capture Saigon any time. But the Communists have held back, offering hope that a negotiated settlement was possible if a suitable South Vietnamese government takes over.

"We don't have much time," said Senator Le Chau Loc, a Roman Catholic. "The other side has shown some restraint but I would guess we only have 24 to 48 hours to decide."

Huong, in a 10-minute address to a joint session of the assembly, charged that the United States abandoned South Vietnam and that "our friends do not want to help us anymore. We now have no other choice but to negotiate."

He asked the legislators either to accept his resignation or to grant him full power to form a "government of negotiation."

By county grand jury

Forgery, grand theft defendants indicted

Two men have been indicted by a Fayette County grand jury for alleged crimes in Washington C. H. earlier this year.

After hearing testimony solicited by assistant Fayette County prosecuting attorney John H. Roszmann, a panel of seven men and two women found sufficient evidence to warrant bringing David T. Richardson, 21, of Columbus, and Ricky T. Allphin, 19, of Morrow, to trial.

Richardson is charged with grand theft in connection with a reported auto theft some two weeks ago. An auto belonging to James H. Comstock Jr., of Newark, which had been parked on W. Temple St., was reported stolen April 9.

Fayette County Sheriff's deputies discovered the car on Hess Road a short time later and its two occupants were apprehended. Richardson, who was one of the occupants, was arrested and charged. Theft charges have not been filed against Nickie Johnson, 20, of Columbus, the other occupant.

Allphin is charged with two counts of forgery. He allegedly forged checks drawn on the H.V. Construction Co., Blanchester, and the Virginia Electric and Power Co., Richmond, Va., on Jan. 2 and Feb. 5. The total value of checks was just under $350, and both were cashed locally.

Roszmann called six witness including several Washington C. H. police officers during the three-hour grand jury session. Richardson and Allphin were the only defendants considered by the panel, which later toured the Fayette County jail and found no violation of jail standards.

Seated on the grand jury were Martha Hoffman, foreman; David J. Krupla, III; Phillip Croker, Ray E. Fisher, Harold E. Smith, Donald L. Brown, Leo S. Donohoe, Wendall Shaw and Katherine Bailey.

Would-be skyjacker held after fueling stop made

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — "He said he had big troubles, lots of problems, his own problems," said one passenger of the man who hijacked a United Air Lines 727 jet over Baltimore, Md.

The man, who declared he "wanted to see Castro," was arrested during a refueling stop here when his last three hostages sneaked off the plane.

He was identified as Frank Page Covey, age 43 or 44, of Richmond, Va. He was charged with air piracy.

United officials said the hijacker allowed the 60 passengers and three stewardesses to deplane when the airliner landed in Atlanta, leaving him on board with the captain, first officer and flight engineer.

"Other United people managed to get the hijacker's attention. While he was occupied, the cabin crew managed to get around him. They used the rear cabin stairs to deplane," said John Philp, the airline's regional public relations manager.

Government hikes mortgage interest

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is raising the maximum interest rate for federally insured home loans, marking a reversal of a trend toward lower interest rates that economists had hoped would help revive the housing industry and the James O'Keeffe, assistant special agent in charge of the Atlanta FBI office, and another FBI agent then boarded the plane and arrested the man without incident.

O'Keeffe said the hijacker kept one hand in an airline flight bag and threatened to blow the plane up if he was not flown to Cuba. The agent said he found no explosives and no weapon when he arrested Covey.

The plane was United flight 344, which originated in Los Angeles and made stops in Birmingham, Ala., Charlotte, N.C., and Raleigh, N.C., enroute to Newark, N.J.

The last attempted hijacking of a domestic flight took place last Jan. 13 when a passenger attempted to divert an Eastern Airlines flight to San Juan, P.R. He was captured after the plane made an emergency refueling stop at Dufles International Airport, near Washington.

Bank robbery leaves 11 dead

MEXICO CITY (AP) — A dozen leftist guerrillas led by a "dark and pretty" woman machine-gunned at least 11 persons to death in a bank holdup that got them $12,000, police and witnesses said.

Eight policemen were shot to death Friday during a wild chase by 36 police cars and two helicopters across the city. Two suspects were captured, one of them wounded.

Police said the others killed included two passersby and a bank teller. Two others were wounded.

Police Chief Daniel Gutierrez Santos told reporters the two captives said they were members of the Red Brigade of the 23rd of September Communist League, a guerrilla band advocating violent revolution.

The young bandits — eight men and four women — attacked the Banco de Comercio branch shortly after it opened for business.

Witnesses said some of the robbers fired machine guns and pistols as they general national economy.

The Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) announced Friday that the ceiling on government-guaranteed mortgages will rise by one-half of one per cent to 8.5 per cent, effective Monday.

The bandits demanded money from a teller and then shot him in the stomach, fatally wounding him.

"A woman appeared to be the chief," said Rodolfo Martinez, another bank officer. "She was dark and pretty with a very strong voice." Other witnesses said she was the one who emptied the cash drawers.

Outside the bank a witness said some of the bandits "stuck their guns in the windows of a patrol car and fired a lot of shots at the policemen inside."

BROKEN CAR AND BROKEN FENCE — Many sections of this fence, belonging to Wyman Wyatt of 3705 Creek Rd., were rearranged by a car driven by Rickie Lee Malott, 16, of 520 North St. at 2:25 p.m. Friday. Malott lost control on wet pavement, while traveling on Creek Road and struck the fence. Roy D. Duncan, 17, of 419 East Street, one of the passengers in the Malott auto, suffered minor injuries.

Ford urges more jail terms

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford, hoping to put muscle behind the slogan that "crime does not pay," suggests that prison sentences be made mandatory for twice-convicted perpetrators of violent crimes.

Ford, attending a 150th anniversary dinner Friday night at Yale Law School where he earned a degree in 1941, signaled key elements in an anticrime program he will submit to Congress in about six weeks.

He said he would ask Congress to make sentences mandatory for those who commit violent crimes more than once.

He said this legislation, which would only affect crimes covered by federal law, could serve as a model for the adoption of similar provisions by the states.

Three members of the Yale Law School faculty in the audience at New Haven, Conn., said after the President's speech that they opposed mandatory sentences.

Ford referred indirectly to "the national disgrace of lawbreaking in high places" — an apparent reference to Watergate and other scandals. But he emphasized the problem of violent crime, which he said has denied the nation the "domestic tranquility" promised in the Constitution.

"Most serious offenders are repeaters," Ford said. "We owe it to their victims, past, present, and future, to get them off the streets. This is just everyday common sense."

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said in advance of Ford's quick round-trip to Connecticut that the President would, in broad outline, go into his special message to Congress on crime.

Ford said, "I am urging that virtually all of those convicted of a violent crime should be sent to prison. And this should be done especially if a gun was involved or there was other substantial danger or injury to a person or persons. There certainly should be imprisonment if the convicted person has a prior record of convictions."

Yale law professors Charles Black and Clyde Summers and Dean Abraham Goldstein all said after Ford's speech that they opposed mandatory sentences.

Black said, "I'm not sure that all violent crime is worse than some nonviolent crime."

U.S. Solicitor General Robert H. Bork confined his reaction to the speech to saying that he felt there was "something in the idea" of mandatory sentences. He said it was unclear whether Ford meant a fixed number of years in prison or simply a mandatory prison sentence.

Ford spoke before completion of a Justice Department study of potential remedies for mounting crime rates, but presidential aides insisted the points outlined by their boss had been discussed in advance with Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi.

Justice Department spokesman Robert Havel said the department provided no material or proposals for the speech.

One Ford assistant said the President amended his prepared text after receiving a call from Levi while flying to New Haven aboard his Air Force jet.

In its original version, the altered sentence read that it was essential "that all, practically all, of those actually convicted be sent to prison."

As amended, it specified jail terms for those "convicted of predatory crimes."

Congress nears OK on troop use

WASHINGTON (AP) — Authority for the use of U.S. military men in South Vietnam to aid in the evacuation of Americans and some Vietnamese, and funds for humanitarian aid are expected to win final congressional approval Tuesday.

The bill would prohibit President Ford from using any more troops than are necessary, or any longer than they are needed, to evacuate Americans and their dependents. It also would grant $327 million in humanitarian aid.

The Senate approved the bill Friday 46 to 17 after it was worked out by House-Senate conferees. It was approved over objections that Americans are not being pulled out of Saigon fast enough to prevent the use of force.

"The longer they are there the greater the danger that a large U.S. force will have to go in for an extended time to bring them out," said Sen. Dick Clark, D-Iowa.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., said the bill gives Ford "flexibility where in the most dire circumstances he may give some payments to get people out or military assistance."

In response to questions, he said that could even include payment of bribes, although he said he doubts bribes will be necessary.

Humphrey also said he believes the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong have signaled that they want to set up a provisional government in Saigon and are willing to let Americans and some Vietnamese leave the country peacefully.

U.S. officials say a cease-fire in Vietnam and the start of negotiations for a political settlement could come early next week.

Their assessment came as South Vietnamese President Tran Van Huong offered to resign in favor of a government acceptable to North Vietnam and the Viet Cong.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen refused to comment on a report that South Vietnam was trying to send a cabinet officer to Hanoi on a U.S. Air Force plane to negotiate a settlement. Nessen told newsmen it was "a subject too delicate and sensitive to discuss here."

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger denied a report by Rep. William S. Broomfield, R-Mich., that a "tacit understanding" had been reached with North Vietnam to permit evacuation of all nonessential Americans by Monday.

Broomfield later said he was relying on newspaper reports he had thought were based on a briefing from State Department aides.

Micronesian tribal chiefs seek U.S. cash for Eniwetok

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two Micronesian tribal chiefs want Congress to vote money to rehabilitate Eniwetok Atoll, where the United States tested 43 nuclear bombs.

The chiefs appeared Friday before a Senate subcommittee to seek help in returning to their Pacific Ocean homeland 4,800 miles west of San Francisco.

"We would like to tell you from the heart how important it is to us to be able to return to our homeland," said 83-year-old chief Iroij Johannes Peter through an interpreter. "We want to go home if you will please help."

Two tribes of Eniwetok natives were moved from the atoll to a smaller island 160 miles to the southwest when the United States began preparing the remote area for atomic tests in 1947.

Bikini Atoll, another atomic test site 300 miles away, already has been cleaned up and natives are slowly returning home.

Among the bombs detonated by the United States at Eniwetok was the first hydrogen bomb.

The islands now are a jungle of weed-like vegetation littered with abandoned buildings and other test program debris. The circular atoll surrounds one of the most beautiful lagoons in the Pacific.

But the Pentagon says it would require an expenditure of about $40 million to make the island liveable again. It says the island remains dangerously radioactive.

The population of the Eniwetoks grew from 136 to more than 400 on their new island of Ujelang, but they steadfastly resisted any attempt to make them regard the place as their permanent home.

Except for a cement block meeting house, there are no permanent structures on Ujelang.

"They've avoided doing anything that might leave someone in the government to feel they've put down roots on Ujelang," said Ted R. Mitchell of Saipan, an attorney for the islanders who accompanied them to the Senate hearing. "They knew that could be dangerous."

Chief Peter said that the islanders, skilled navigators, sailboat builders and fishermen, would be almost totally self-sufficient within a short time after they take up residence on Eniwetok again.

Rodeo events prove challenging

By SANDY FOSSON

COLUMBUS — Trying to maintain a grip on a 1,000 pound Montana bucking horse at the same time he's doing his best to orbit the cowboy in eight seconds is more than just difficult.

It appeared to be nearly impossible for some of the cowboys competing during the Friday night performance of the Longhorn World Championship Rodeo at the Ohio State Fairgrounds Coliseum, Columbus.

The Nashville, Tenn.-based rodeo company, which is making its first appearance in Columbus, has performed before capacity crowds both Thursday and Friday nights and has three events remaining before hitting the road for a Madison, Wisc. rodeo next weekend.

Cowboys and cowgirls from around the country are competing along with world champion rodeo participants for top cash prizes with approximately $10,000 total purse in the International Rodeo Association's sanctioned events of bareback bronc riding, calf roping, saddle bronc riding, steer wrestling, bull riding and cowgirl barrel racing.

The audience is continually entertained between contest events with specialty acts, including El Charro de Sante Fe, a master trick roper, Nocona George and his Valuable Steed (which has been trained to replace the 1975 Oldsmobile) and renown bullfighting clown, Lecille Harris.

Seven semi-trucks are used to haul the 200 head of livestock for the Longhorn rodeo including, "Gold Plated," voted the world champion bucking horse in 1974 and "Panic", the toughest bareback horse in the 1973 International Rodeo Finals.

Although the rodeo was severely marred with the deaths of five prize bulls earlier this week, the Longhorn company continued as scheduled after replacements were obtained from a Michigan company.

Stan Steen, a 20-year veteran of the rodeo arena and member of the Longhorn management team, said, "It was the largest disaster we've ever had in one haul" after the five bulls died from eating toxic leaves of a decorative hedge on the fairgrounds. Steen estimated the deaths of the bulls would set the company back at least $20,000.

Following Friday night's performance, Jon Kreder of St. Louis, Mo. and Jimmy Cleveland of Carter, Okla. (reigning world champion bareback rider) are tied for the lead in bareback bronc riding with 72 points each out of a possible, yet nearly improbable perfect 100 score.

An Elk Grove, Calif. cowboy, John Mulock, held his lead in the saddle bronc riding with 76 points while Jerry Kidd of Charlotte, N.C. took over the first place spot in steer wrestling.

Tommy Crandle of Henrietta, Okla. retained his lead with an outstanding 83 points score in the bull riding event after holding onto a bull that had only been ridden once.

Marsha Grant of Benton, Ark. edged the present leader for the world championship in cowgirl barrel racing, ten-year-old Metha Brorsen of Perry, Okla., by a tenth of a second with a time of 14.8 seconds.

The three remaining performances of the rodeo will be held at 2 and 8 p.m. today and 2 p.m. Sunday. Tickets are still available for all three performances.

Howard R. Thompson

Howard R. Thompson, 72, of 132 W. Elm St., died at 10 a.m. Friday at Fayette Memorial Hospital, where he had been a patient two days.

Mr. Thompson was born in Columbus where he resided until moving to Washington C.H. a year ago. Before his retirement, he was employed by Capital City Products Co., Columbus. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Toddy Carr Thompson; a daughter, Mrs. Charles (Marilyn) Mallow, 1342 Dayton Ave.; a granddaughter, Mrs. Stanley (Linda) Brown, 702 McArthur Way, and a grandson, Michael Mallow, at home.

Services will be held at 1:30 p.m. Monday in the Kirkpatrick Funeral Home, Washington C.H., with the Rev. Allen Puffenberger, associate past of Grace United Methodist Church, officiating. Burial will be in Washington Cemetery.

Friends may call at the funeral home from 3 to 5 and 7 until 9 p.m. Sunday.

Guy R. Porter

MOUNT STERLING — Services for Guy R. Porter, 77, of Mount Sterling will be held at 1:30 p.m. Monday in the Porter Funeral Home, Mount Sterling, with the Rev. Ralph Ritts officiating. Burial will be in Pleasant Cemetery.

Mr. Porter, a retired machinist from North American, and former police officer in Columbus and Mount Sterling, and guard at the Ohio Penitentiary, died Thursday in Mount Carmel Hospital, Columbus.

Surviving is his wife, Edna Baxter Porter; a son, Bob, and a daughter, Mrs. Don (Mary Ann) Bayless, both of Lake Worth, Fla.; three grandchildren and four great-grandchildren; and one brother, Willard Porter of Chillicothe.

Friends may call at the funeral home after 7 p.m. Saturday.

Labor protestors demand government economy moves

WASHINGTON (AP) — The largest group of labor demonstrators to converge on Washington since the Great Depression of the 1930s is demanding major federal action to combat unemployment.

AFL-CIO officials predict at least 50,000 workers will take part in the rally planned for today at Robert F. Kennedy Stadium.

Also planned are a march of electrical workers past the White House and another march from the Capitol building to the stadium.

"You can put on the rosiest colored glasses you want, but the fact remains that unemployment around the 10 per cent level is a disaster for America and its people, a needless disaster," said United Steelworkers President I. W. Abel in remarks he had prepared for the rally.

"We're fed up, fed up with delay, fed up with excuses, fed up with lack of vision and lack of initiative. We want action now from our government."

Abel was unable to attend the rally because of a death in his family, a spokesman said.

The rally, organized by the AFL-CIO's Industrial Union Department, was called in support of the labor confederation's economic platform adopted in January.

The platform calls for more public service jobs, better unemployment benefits, lower interest rates, tax overhaul, urban aid, import quotas and massive public works spending on mass transit, railroads and public construction to create jobs for the jobless.

There are 59 unions in the Industrial Union Department, containing 6 million of the AFL-CIO's 14.3 million members.

Sen. Richard S. Schweiker, in remarks prepared for delivery at the rally, called for "a national commitment to full employment here at home — a commitment that will mean a job for every American."

The Pennsylvania Republican said that more than 20 million Americans will be unemployed in 1975.

"Our system is working for specially privileged interests, such as the rich, the multinational corporations, and foreign speculators. I think it's high time we make the American system work for working Americans," Schweiker said.

Mass killer being sought

SANTA ROSA, Calif. (AP) — A sick killer with a deadly hatred of women and an inclination to witchcraft may have butchered 30 or more young females in five Western states and will kill again unless he is caught, says the sheriff of Sonoma County.

"We need the help of the public" in finding the maniac, Sheriff Don Striepeke told a news conference Friday.

"Someone, somewhere knows the man we are looking for," the sheriff said, expounding a "lone killer" theory variously disputed or supported by officers in other jurisdictions.

Striepeke, who announced a donated $10,000 reward for the capture of the killer, said he and the state Justice Department believe it a "certainty" that the same man killed at least 14 women in California between December 1969 and December 1973.

Community Education group reviews spring offerings

The Community Education advisory committee had met to review the spring classes of the program, Larry Pollock, assistant program director, has surveyed the classes to obtain a reaction from those who participated.

The general consensus was that their had been a good selection of classes, but that class periods were too short. Participants indicated that they would like to see each session extended to a full two hours rather than the current 90 minutes.

Pollock added that most of the classes were well attended, and the registration fees had covered the cost of the instructor's salaries. After paying salaries for instructors and purchasing supplies, the program had made a profit of $30 for the spring schedule. None of the class money is used for payment of administrators.

Most participants were extremely pleased with the enrollment price of $6 per class, and many suggested additional course offerings for consideration. It was noted that the weight-conditioning program and the oil painting class were continuing to meet.

No indoor classes are anticipated during the summer months.

In connection with bicycle week, the Community Education program will sponsor a bicycle check at Washington C.H. elementary schools next Tuesday through Friday. City police officers have offered to assist in the inspections.

Local 4-H groups will be providing bicycle inspections at several county schools during the week.

Students in kindergarten through third grade in the Miami Trace School District will be making May Day cards for elderly area residents. On a voluntary basis, the children were asked to make the cards and mail or deliver them personally to the senior citizens. A list of the elderly was compiled by the Community Education officials.

It was also determined that Community Education should participate in the Fayette County Home Show at the Fairgrounds next weekend. The organization will share space with WCHO radio and will present a slide show on activities sponsored by Community Education.

Plans will soon be getting underway for this year's "Offsides" football game, the proceeds of which are used to improve and expand the Community Education program.

Toledo area tops for few strikes

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — The area around Toledo recorded the lowest number of man-days lost due to strikes among the 50 largest cities in a six-state Midwestern area during 1973, the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics shows.

During the year, 79,700 mandays were lost through 23 strikes in the area, also lowest among the eight largest cities in Ohio.

Holdup suspects being questioned

LONDON (AP) — Detectives questioned six suspects today in the holdup of a Bank of America branch in London's Mayfair district in which police estimated up to $7 million may have been stolen.

A police spokesman said some valuables taken from safe deposit boxes in the Thursday night holdup may have been recovered but gave no details. One woman had reported she lost jewelry worth $480,000.

The thieves, wearing hoods, took the equivalent of $610,000 in cash, plus the contents of 89 of the bank's 600 safe deposit boxes. Many of the boxes were rented by wealthy American businessmen and celebrities living in Mayfair.

The growing imbalance

As world population inexorably rises, the already great imbalance between the wealthy and poor nations continues to increase. This is the basic message set forth in the 1975 world population data sheet of the Population Reference Bureau.

Two elements are involved. One is the fact that population growth is at a much higher rate in relatively underdeveloped regions — Africa, Asia, Latin America, Oceania — than in North America, Europe and the Soviet Union. The second factor is the amount of food available per capita.

Over the next 25 years, according to the data sheet, the population of Europe is expected to increase by 14 per cent. During the same period, it is estimated, Africa's population will more than double. Whereas estimated growth in North America, Europe and the USSR as a group will be 19 per cent, a 70 per cent increase is anticipated in other regions.

Consequently, 82 per cent of the world's population will be concentrated in Africa, Asia, Latin America and Oceania by the year 2000. That compares with 76 per cent today. Yet it is in those regions, generally speaking, that the greatest food deficiencies are found.

Figures from the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization, into consideration a variety of relevant factors, illustrate the point. The most recent period for which full data are available is 1969-71. At that time, according to the FAO, the developed countries as a whole had 23 per cent more food-energy supplies available than were required. By contrast, supplies in the developing countries fell five per cent short of what was required. In some countries, less than 85 per cent of food-energy requirements were available.

The Population Reference Bureau offers this summation: "In general, the poorest countries with the highest birth, death, and infant mortality rates, the lowest average length of life, and the youngest populations have the lowest levels of food supply. The reverse is true for the wealthier countries."

The United Nations Population Division's estimate of world population by the year 2000 has been revised downward from five years ago. Even so, we are told that there will be 3,967 million people by mid-1975 and 6,253 million — an increase of 58 per cent — 25 years hence. The great bulk of humanity will be in regions which now have food shortages. This is bound to increase the present tensions between developed and developing regions. There must be a concerted, sustained effort to deal with the problem before it becomes unmanageable.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

SUNDAY, APRIL 27

ARIES

(March 21 to April 20)

If the past week put a drain on nerves or stamina, ease up to recoup energies; ambitions will brighten, too. You can rise above fatigue surprisingly well.

TAURUS

(April 21 to May 21)

Matters on the immediate agenda should be taken care of as expected. Give a little where it would ease tensions, but not at the expense of principles.

GEMINI

(May 22 to June 21)

This will be a day calling for calmness and good judgment. Do not let unexpected situations ruffle you and don't let yourself be pushed into undesirable "corners."

CANCER

(June 22 to July 23)

What you expect may not be what you receive — and may be for the best, without your realizing it. Emphasize your gracious, amenable side: It wins laurels, gains.

LEO

(July 24 to Aug. 23)

Those "best things in life" are still free for the takers. Salute this auspicious day with hope, vigor and enthusiasm for your most worthwhile interests.

VIRGO

(Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)

Once you know that your ideas have good potentialities, lose no time in trying to bring them to realization. Good planetary influences should help you.

LIBRA

(Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)

You may think you have a project under control, rolling briskly. Better take another look for hidden flaws — anything that could mean time, energy lost.

SCORPIO

(Oct. 24 to Nov. 22)

You may make a new acquaintance or renew an old friendship. Look for those "small" blessings and gains so often belittled. They could make your day!

SAGITTARIUS

(Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)

Everything seems to conspire to engender optimism and confidence. You should have a most interesting and inspiring day.

CAPRICORN

(Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)

Neither renege on promises nor attempt too much. There are tendencies to both now. Accept only what your better sense recognizes as suited to the day and your purposes.

AQUARIUS

(Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)

Don't depart abruptly from a well-planned schedule, except where emergency so requires. Road may be bumpy in part, but rewards will be sweeter.

PISCES

(Feb. 20 to March 20)

Don't go against present trends or you may find yourself completely out of step with others. Some of your future objectives are now taking shape.

YOU BORN TODAY: Taureans excel in the arts, music, as writers, promotional and advertising experts; also as scientists (especially in the medical field), inventors and teachers. You are extremely ambitious, but not necessarily in a material way. Your striving is for extraordinary attainment — and you usually achieve it, no matter what your field. Your personality is a quiet one, reserved and almost shy at times, so you often amaze others with your obstinacy when opposed. In fact, you can be downright stubborn at times. Try to be more flexible.

MONDAY, APRIL 28

ARIES

(March 21 to April 20)

It is difficult for you to contain yourself at times, but this is one of those days when you MUST. Otherwise, mix-ups and misunderstandings will ensue.

(April 21 to May 21)

There are tendencies now to take off on tangents and to ease up in effort just when more persistence is needed. Don't fall yourself by yielding to such inclinations.

GEMINI

(May 22 to June 21)

You will have access to some unusual gains if you move with forethought and know-how. Mercury, propitious, stimulates your intuition and quick thinking.

CANCER

(June 22 to July 23)

You will not approve of some extremes being suggested. Speak up, voice your disapproval — but calmly and logically. A fine chance to use your innate diplomacy!

LEO

(July 24 to Aug. 23)

A day in which the Leoite should shine! Now's the time to capitalize on your top-flight ideas; to use the novel strategy that boots your project to the finish line.

VIRGO

(Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)

Several useful ideas may come to you now, but not the opportunity to apply them immediately. Be patient, and don't try to get ahead of yourself.

LIBRA

(Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)

A good day! Stellar influences should bring increased prestige, new friendships, personality development. You can gain through others as well as through your own efforts.

SCORPIO

(Oct. 24 to Nov. 22)

Not much planetary help here, so day is practically your own to mold. Try to conclude long-term agreements if any are pending. Stars are generous in that respect.

SAGITTARIUS

(Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)

Not much planetary help here, so day is practically your own to mold. Try to conclude long-term agreements if any are pending. Stars are generous in that respect.

SAGITTARIUS

(Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)

Fine Jupiter influences. Take up the reins and drive straight, strong and with enthusiasm. Adhere to well-defined procedures, however.

CAPRICORN

(Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)

Maintain an intelligent, discriminating distance from those who do not hold to your principles while you also aim to better understand their reasoning.

AQUARIUS

(Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)

A fine chance to put more strength into methods for further your goals. Your keenness and convincing words can bring new laurels.

PISCES

(Feb. 20 to March 20)

A thorough reappraisal of recent activities can be the basis for highly improved future planning. Don't stymie yourself through outmoded ideas, methods. Be progressive.

YOU BORN TODAY are one of those rare persons who combine idealism and creativity with realistic know-how, and your successes seem to know no end. Extremely versatile, many Taureans often engage in two occupations at once — or several in sequence — and succeed in all. There are many fields in which you could reach the top, but you probably would excel most at painting, interior decorating, horticulture, as an educator or in the medical field. On the minus side, you are inclined to try and dominate others; are also inclined toward arrogance and self-will. Try to curb these traits for they could alienate persons in a position to help you.

'Stuff stomach' competition held

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — When University of Dayton's football team finishes spring drills, the squad celebrates.

Offensive guard John Sheshull led the annual "stuff your stomach" competition this week by eating six small pizzas in 30 minutes. Sheshull was 6-1 and 240 pounds when he started satisfying his appetite.

Fullback Mark Zimmerman, guard Sam Rampey and assistant coach Bob Shortall tied for second with 4½ pizzas each in 30 minutes.

Last year's hamburger eating contest, defensive back Greg Meter gnawed 14½ burgers in 30 minutes.

Married persons happier, university survey finds

CHICAGO (AP) — Married people in the United States are happier than singles despite reports to the contrary, according to a University of Michigan psychologist.

"We find that married Americans are far happier and more satisfied with their lives than singles are, in spite of national mumbblings and grumbblings about the tired institution of matrimony," writes Dr. Angus Campbell in the May issue of Psychology Today.

He and two colleagues, Phillip Converse and William Rodgers, recently surveyed 2,164 adults across the country, asking what they think about the quality of their lives and how their opinions have changed over the years.

"Fewer than 10 per cent (of the married) described their lives in sour terms — boring, miserable, lonely, empty, useless — and far more than half think their lives are worthwhile, full, hopeful, interesting, and other happy positives," Campbell reported.

"All of the married groups — men and women, over 30 and under, with children and without — reported higher feelings of satisfaction and general good feelings about their lives than all of the unmarried groups — the single, divorced, or widowed."

Of the single groups, women of all ages were found to be happier and more satisfied than men, Campbell said.

Campbell reported that having children "is a mixed experience. The pater of little feet aggravates as well as delights."

Once a couple has children, "reports of happiness and satisfaction drop to average, not to rise again significantly until their children are grown and about to leave the nest," the survey found.

"The best of all possible worlds, for most Americans, is to be newly married and not have children," Campbell said.

Public donations sought in KSU court struggle

WASHINGTON (AP) — Families of 1970 Kent State University victims have returned for the first time to the public for contributions to finance their lawsuit against Ohio officials.

"I didn't know where else to get any money. It gets pretty desperate," said Arthur Krause whose daughter Allison was one of four students killed by National Guard bullets in the confrontation five years ago May 4. The guardsmen were sent to the campus to quell student demonstrations protesting the U.S. incursion into Cambodia.

Krause signed the letter mailed last month to about 124,000 persons, requesting donations to the Kent State Due Process of Law Fund. The names were obtained from a professional mailing-list firm.

So far, the fund has received about 4,400 contributions, mostly of $5 or $10 and totaling some $42,000, said the Rev. John P. Adams. The minister is director of the United Methodist Church division which sponsors and administers the fund from its Washington headquarters.

facelift threatens spouse

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a physician (G.P.) and ours is a good marriage. But like everyone else, I have a problem.

For the last two years, I have been wanting to get a facelift, but my husband says, "If you get a facelift, I'll look like your father, so please forget it."

Abby, can you imagine a man being so vain as to deprive his wife of a facelift because he doesn't want her to look younger than he?

(He says, "If you put on a little weight, those wrinkles in your face will fill out, and you won't need any plastic surgery." Isn't that a ridiculous way for a doctor to talk, knowing that my weight is perfect for my height?)

The plastic surgeon is tops and says he would gladly do it for me, but not unless I get my husband's permission.

I am a year younger than my husband, but I look older because I am prematurely wrinkled. I hate to look in the mirror. What should I do?

PRUNE FACE

DEAR PRUNE FACE: You have three options: (1) Spend the rest of your life dodging mirrors and hating it. (2) Find a plastic surgeon who will give you a facelift regardless of what your husband thinks. (3) Make your husband realize that he is a selfish, egotistical little boy, and get him to change his mind.

DEAR ABBY: The people in our office refer to our boss as a "ladies' man." We are having a difference of opinion as to what that means.

Would you say that a "ladies' man" is a man who is interested in a lot of ladies?

CURIOUS

DEAR CURIOUS: No. A ladies' man is a man who has a lot of ladies interested in HIM.

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem that no one can answer for me, so I'm asking you. Can you get married if you aren't baptized?

I wasn't baptized, and I have a neighbor who is a good Catholic. She asked me one day if I was baptized, and I told her no. Well, right away she started calling me an animal and all that. Then she told me if I wasn't baptized, I couldn't get married.

Abby, is it true that if you aren't baptized, you can't get married?

NOT BAPTIZED

DEAR NOT: I am informed by the Lutheran Church (Missouri Synod, Minnesota South District Office) that there is no stipulation in its religion that a person must be baptized before he can be married in the Lutheran Church.

The Baptist Association Headquarters informs me that there are no restrictions at all in the Baptist religion regarding a person being baptized in order for him to get married in the Baptist Church.

And Father Kevin of the Catholic Basilica St. Mary said that a person must be baptized (in a Christian faith) in order for the marriage to be considered a Christian marriage.

When a Catholic wants to marry someone from a non-Christian religion, a Moslem, for example, the Catholic Church performs a marriage that is considered "quasi-sacramental," i.e., it is not a sacrament, although the Catholic Church recognizes it as a valid marriage. But it is not considered a Christian marriage because one of the partners is not a Christian.

Officers capture escaped prisoner

WILMINGTON — An injured prisoner who escaped from confinement at Clinton Memorial Hospital, Wilmington, Thursday afternoon was captured on Ohio 730 late Thursday evening.

Frank Bayes, 23, of Blanchester, who had escaped from the second floor of the hospital by knotting sheets together and climbing down the makeshift rope, appeared in Wilmington Municipal Court Friday on the original charge of breaking and entering.

Clinton County Sheriff Donald Osborn said no additional charges had been filed as of Friday afternoon, but additional charges probably would be filed, along with a holder from Clermont County for charges there.

Osborn said Bayes was wearing the red pajamas, hospital slippers and blue raincoat he apparently took from a roommate in the escape when he wandered out on Ohio 730 at the city limits and was almost immediately stopped and picked up by Wilmington police officers. The sheriff said Bayes had apparently hidden in a nearby wooded area for several hours during a steady rain.

"He didn't have any place he could go," Osborn said. "We were just waiting him out."

Bayes had been hospitalized for treatment of injuries he received last Saturday as he attempted to wrest a shotgun from the owner of Bob's Shoppers Mart on Ohio 28 in Blanton.

Two 17-year-old boys have been charged with burglary by Washington C.H. police for their alleged involvement in the burglary of Moore's store, Thursday evening.

The burglary, which occurred at 6:45 p.m. Thursday, was interrupted when the assistant store manager returned to the business and surprised the youths, who quickly fled out of the back door of the store which they had filed and sawed open.

Wind, rain, snow pound mountain areas in West

By The Associated Press
A wintry storm lashed the northern Rockies and Plains with wind and rain today and flung heavy snow into some mountain areas.

Five inches of snow fell on Salt Lake City through Friday night. Heavy-snow warnings were posted for the mountains of Colorado through tonight.

Travel advisories were in effect in northern Utah, and stockmen were alerted for cold and wet weather in northern and western Colorado.

Wind gusts up to 70 miles per hour churned up huge clouds of dust over the Nebraska Panhandle. Strong gusts ranged south into Arizona, and travelers in the Southern California deserts also were advised of blowing dust.

Rain or showers spread from Idaho across Montana and into the Dakotas. Marble-size hail pelted Mobridge, S.D., during an early-morning thunderstorm.

Thunderstorms also crackled over southwest Texas and were scattered eastward into Alabama.

Showers lingered in the Middle Atlantic States, a remnant of a storm system that dumped flooding rains into the Ohio Valley on Friday and touched off severe thunderstorms and tornadoes earlier.

Skies were clear over the mid-continent between the two major storm systems, and in much of the Southwest and parts of the South.

Cold air sweeping in behind the Western storm tumbled temperatures into the 30s over interior sections of the Far West and to the 20s in the intermountain region. The 30s also chilled the central Great Lakes region overnight.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 21 at Ely, Nev., to 77 at Del Rio, Tex.

And the rains came

By JOHN P. GRUBER

County Extension Agent, Agriculture
Corn planting and general field work was progressing at a fairly good pace around the county until the rains came Thursday and Friday. During the last week we've been on several farms that were progressing at or ahead of last years planting. Understand that there are a few who are nearly finished planting corn. Then too there are several who have not started.

This points out even though research has shown that early planting does pay off in higher yields most years that with high production costs some folks are being cautious about sinking those costs in the ground too soon.

We consider optimum planting time to be April 25 to May 7 or 10. Most years in order to finish by May 7 you need to start before April 25. Mid-April is a good starting time if you have adequate drainage.

A few days of sunshine early next week will sprout this corn that's in the ground now. If you didn't get your pre-emergence herbicide on ahead of the rain you may be forced to a post emergence herbicide if you can't get back in the field before the corn is up

Original Marysville cabins restored

MARYSVILLE, Ohio (AP) — Retired builder Ellsworth Ohnsman is restoring old log cabins to resemble the original Marysville which was founded in 1819.

Ohnsman, who serves as bicentennial chairman for the area, lives in one of the homes he rebuilt. He launched the project in 1970 and hopes to have most of it completed by Independence Day 1976.

Marysville had five cabins, a barn and blacksmith shop when the community was founded.

Conservation Service Tuesday evening. Steering Committee Chairman Laurence (Bucky) Dumford reviewed some of the "snags" which have held up the project's planning for the last 12 or 13 years.

Problems have existed as the federal and state level. First a federal battle over funding or small watershed projects which was won by an overwhelming vote in Congress to continue federal support. Dumford pointed out that snag was eliminated and everyone thought progress could be made. But then the project was stalled at the state level in recent years by a policy in Ohio's Department of Natural Resources of not approving small watershed projects. That policy has changed in the last year.

Everyone was hopeful at the watershed meeting that SCS officials from Columbus would have a good report on planning. However, Marshall Edens, SCS, dropped what several present considered to be a small bombshell on the project.

Edens gave the group a lesson in watershed economics to show how project costs and benefits are calculated to determine if a project was feasible. Calculations show that costs of the project would far exceed the benefits if a full scale project was completed as hoped for by many local farmers.

However, in spite of the bad news, Edens said he was hopeful that some drainage improvements could be made. He indicated SCS would have some more definite cost figures by late May.

WE'VE SAID it before — but it's important. Pesticide safety is important at this time of the year. Don't forget, the pesticide label is a legal document which is designed to provide information and safety. A pesticide user has the responsibility to use the product according to label directions. Don't trust your memory — read the label before you use any pesticide.

BARLEY GROWN IN ONE WEEK — Dewey Garvey, commissary manager at Brookfield Zoo, west of Chicago, looks over trays of barley grass which are grown at the zoo in seven days as a cost-saving food supplement for the animals. Barley seeds are put in trays, sprayed with a water solution for 10 minutes every six hours under fluorescent lighting in a constant temperature of 68 degrees. In seven days the grass is six inches high.

Beef feeding not wasteful?

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Agriculture Department economist says there has been much public misconception about beef production, including claims that cattle operations waste food which could be consumed by needy people.

James E. Nixon, a commodity analyst in the department's Economic Research Service, says part of the misunderstanding involves the number of cattle which actually are fed grain.

Last Jan. 1 an estimated 10.2 million cattle were in feedlots, meaning they were being fattened on grain-based rations for slaughter at a later date. Those represented only nine per cent of the total U.S. beef cattle inventory of 116.5 million head, Nix said.

Over 70 per cent of slaughtered cattle were grain fed for several years prior to 1974," Nix said. But this has recently dropped to around 60 per cent, he said.

Nix said another misconception has been the amount of grain required to produce one pound of retail beef, with some figures claiming that up to 10 pounds of grain are used to produce one pound of meat.

"This is a gross over-estimate of the grain actually fed," Nix said Tuesday in a report on the livestock and meat situation published by his agency.

"It is likely that roughages (from hay and other plant sources) accounted for almost all of the ration prior to placement in the feedlot," he said.

Moreover, he said, grain makes up only about 65 per cent of the feedlot ration, with the rest coming from other sources, mostly roughages.

Thus, about 6.5 pounds of grain is used to produce each pound of the 450-pound weight gain of the steer while it is in the feedlot. The gain is based on a steer entering a feedlot at 600 pounds and then sold for slaughter at 1,050 pounds, Nix said.

Hogs, which feed primarily on grain from the time they are weaned, consume almost as much as beef cattle although their numbers are only 60 per cent of the cattle inventory, Nix said.

Translated into retail cuts, Nix said grain consumption figures for 1973-74 showed that it took an average of 5.6

pounds of grain to produce one pound of beef for consumers while 8.4 pounds were required for each pound of pork.

The figures, he said, show that "the amount of grain consumed per pound of beef produced is much less than that which is often quoted" and that cattle need less than hogs because they can grow to most of their weight by eating roughages.

"These roughages, which cattle can convert to food for humans, are inedible by humans," Nix said. "If not utilized by cattle, most of these roughages — which produce millions of pounds of meat — would be wasted."

Auglaize man heads Farm Bureau

WAPAKONETA, Ohio (AP) — Wallace Hirschfeld travels an even 100 miles these days from his Auglaize County farmhouse to the Statehouse in Columbus to help Ohio's farmers.

He travels those miles in both directions as president of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation, the state's biggest farm and agribusiness organization.

Hirschfeld takes over the presidency at a time when membership is approaching an alltime high. At last count, there were 62,630 family members.

Hirschfeld is a Mercer County native whose father moved to Auglaize County in 1934. He and his sons, Bryan and Erik, farm 180 owned acres and 220 rented acres 6½ miles northwest of New Bremen. Their cropping amounts to corn, soybeans and wheat in a three-year rotation.

Their livestock enterprise amounts to feeding out between 1,000 and 1,400 hogs a year. The hogs come onto Hirschfeld land as feeder pigs.

SCS marks anniversary

COLUMBUS — Wind and water erosion raced out of control. Erosion and sediment damage ran into the millions of dollars. Land and water, our great American heritage, was being destroyed. The year was 1935 and the problem was recognized as a national menace.

On April 27 of that year the U.S. Soil Conservation Service (SCS) was organized "for the development and the prosecution of a long-time program of soil and water conservation." This month will mark the federal agency's 40th anniversary.

"Resource conservation or the lack of it now reaches out to touch almost everyone in Ohio and across the nation," says Robert E. Quilliam, Ohio State conservationist for the SCS.

"The need for soil and water and related resource conservation work continues to grow to keep pace with modern land use requirements," said Quilliam.

The SCS began work in Ohio in 1942 with the formation of the state's first soil and water conservation district in Highland County. Working on-site with all land users cooperating with their 88 local districts, the federal agency now provides technical help each year to over 82,000 Ohio individuals, groups, organizations, land developers, and units of government.

"Soil and water conservation district cooperators now control the use of over 10 million acres of Ohio land and their numbers are growing each year," says Floyd Heft, Chief of the Ohio Department of Natural Resources, Division of Soil and Water Districts. "The technical help districts provide at local levels through the SCS and other cooperating agencies has and will continue to play an invaluable role in Ohio's future," Heft said.

PICKING WILD GREENS

Every spring it seems that Nature's favorite color is green. The landscape becomes a paint mixer's dream, with countless shades of green blending beautifully across fields and woodlands.

Some of those wild greens that catch your eye may also capture your taste and add an exotic touch to end the monotony of winter meals. Those wild green colors are the spring cloaks of a wide variety of plants that grow wild in the countryside. Many of them are edible and are delightful additions to any meal.

Finding the right plants at the right time and preparing them for the dinner table may take a little time and know-how, but the fresh new flavor may be well worth the effort, says Evelyn Gray, Extension nutritionist at The Ohio State University. Here are her suggestions for selecting and preparing a dozen varieties of wild greens for the table.

As soon as new leaves start to grow during warm spring days, you may begin to gather wild greens. Use a basket, big paper bag, or plastic bag to collect the green plants. Be sure to choose the plants while the growth is new and tender.

Use scissors or a sharp knife. Such plants as dandelions are easiest to handle and wash if they are cut off at the root crown so the bunch of leaves holds together. You should cut greens — not pull them. Mixing greens of different kinds may improve the flavor and eye appeal, and you may find it easier to get small amounts of several greens than to get a large amount of any one.

After you have gathered greens, keep them cool. If collected in a bag and stored in a refrigerator, they will keep fresh for hours. Trim away roots, thick stems, and poor leaves. Use a little detergent in warm water to be extra sure the greens are clean. Wash all greens in fresh water several times. Lift them out each time. Wash until no grit (or suds) appears on the water.

If your search for wild greens takes you beyond your own grounds, be sure to get permission to hunt for the plants, even if you are only looking for dandelions. Hunting without permission may get you in trouble for trespassing, and it will likely cause the landowner to resent visits to his fields by both you and others who may have similar ideas.

Be careful to leave enough leaves so the plants left in the ground will continue to grow. Some plants can be killed by removal of all leaves. A notable exception to this is the dandelion, which regrows quickly from seeds.

Some wild plants are poisonous or have unpleasant tastes. Use only those plants you know are safe to eat, and do not collect plants where pollution is likely. Pollution comes from pesticides, human and animal wastes, household and industrial wastes, or dirty air.

Greens may be polluted along roadsides, railways, in backyards, any place animals and people pass often, or where spraying has been done to control insects or diseases.

Here is a list of some safe and common early and mid-season plants suitable for use as wild greens:

WATERCRESS — Leaves and tender shoots cooked or raw. Use only from water that is clean and free from animal or human wastes.

DANDELION — Young tender leaves raw or cooked, alone or with other greens. May be canned.

CURLY DOCK — Tender leaves and stems best cooked with other greens.

WOOD SORREL — Young growth, raw in salad or cooked served, with cream sauce, or in cream soup. (Sour taste.)

SHEPHERD'S PURSE — Tender blanched leaves taste like cabbage. Peppery leaves may be boiled with other greens or eaten raw.

COMMON CHICKWEED — Leaves and stems cooked.

LAMB'S QUARTERS — (Wild Spinach) Young growth 6 to 10 inches raw or cooked.

COMMON MILKWEED — Young, tender leaves, growing tips of stalks and young flower buds, used as greens. Young pods, about an inch long, used as okra.

COMMON PLANTAIN — Young leaves, cooked.

MUSTARD — Young leaves boiled, in salads with other greens.

NETTLES — Young leaves; cook like spinach or dry for tea.

POKEWEED — Young shoots - cook a long time. Young leaves - look for greens. Roots are poisonous, do not eat.

A sketch of these plants is available at our office, 319 South Fayette Street. A copy can be mailed to you by calling 335-1150.

Mrs. Carson Aid hostess

Mrs. Edward Lee Carson was hostess when the New Martinsburg Ladies Aid met in her home. Devotions entitled "Smell the Flowers" was presented by Mrs. George Durnell, and Mrs. Robert Bock conducted the meeting. Spring flowers were named for response to roll call.

Mrs. Thurl Wilson gave a cash donation in memory of her late husband, and it was announced that two laprobes had been given to two persons, and cheer cards sent to the ill members.

"My Country 'Tis of Thee" was the program title presented by Mrs. Durnell, and "In His Footsteps." A Bible quiz was conducted and refreshments were served to Mrs. C. A. Wilson, Mrs. Bock, Mrs. Joe McClure, Mrs. Durnell, Mrs. Oscar McCoy, and guests Miss Louise Ritter, and Sonya and Stacy Buzzard.

The May 29 meeting will be held in the home of Mrs. Durnell at 2 p.m.

Annual spring tour made by Posy Garden Club tour

The Posy Garden Club took the scenic drive through Lancaster, enjoying the spring flowering bulbs and many large magnolia trees, to Newark. Mrs. Fred Schilling and Miss Lynn Schilling of Newark, conducted the tour to many interesting places, including Dawes Arboretum, Mound Builders Earthworks and Flint Ridge State Park.

The Dawes Arboretum was toured by car with many stops for walks in interesting areas. The Arboretum covers 950 acres with 2,000 species of trees and plants, many labeled with common and scientific names.

There are extensive plantings of holly, oak, pawpaw, Kentucky coffee trees, Chinese chestnut and many coniferous varieties including dawn redwood, larch and cypress which lose their leaves in the fall. Located here is the Ohio Champion white pine (Pinus Strobus), the largest of its kind in the state with 120 feet tall, probably planted by an early settler 150 years ago, because white pine is not native in this part of Ohio.

The Japanese Garden, designed and constructed by M. Makot Nakamura, from Kyoto, Japan, is "an experiment in the exchange of two cultures—American and Japanese." The Japanese Garden is not a flower garden but a landscape garden, showing pebbly beaches, shoreline rocks, islands of bridges and are supposed to be "havens of peace."

The next stop was at the Mound-builders Earthworks where members viewed the 18 foot-high circle mound built by the Hopewell Indians. There is a large bird figure in the center and it was apparently built for ceremonies.

After lunch, the tour ended at Flint Ridge, where Indians journeyed from all over eastern United States for nearly 10,000 years to quarry flint. The ridge still bears the scars of their work. Nature trails, including one for the handicapped meander through the park.

A short business meeting during the lunch hour was conducted by Mrs. Jess Schlichter, who read an invitation from the Washington Garden Club to attend an open meeting at 1:30 p.m. May 7 at the Fish and Game Lodge. It was announced that five members had met at Fayette Progressive School for a craft hour of making plaques with bird pictures, shells and other natural materials.

Mrs. J. Schlichter, Mrs. Lyle Hanawalt, and Mrs. Arthur Schlichter attended the Region 16 spring meeting at St. Andrew's United Methodist Church near Beavercreek. Mrs. Karen Straley of Madison County was elected Regional Director for 1967 and 1977. Mrs. Arthur Schlichter led an "experiment in design" leading the group in making assemblage on a background.

Members enjoying the tour were Mrs. Frank Barrett, Mrs. Fern Miller, Mrs. Dorothy Bihl, Mrs. A. Schlichter, Mrs. Bess Seaman, Mrs. Carl Benner, Mrs. J. Schlichter and Mrs. Robert Wilson, a guest.

The May meeting will be with Mrs. Fred Rivenburg near Springfield.

Rhodes plans to sign King holiday measure

By ROBERT E. MILLER
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. James A. Rhodes plans to sign a newly passed bill establishing the third Monday in January as a state holiday to honor the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., his office says.

The House completed its enactment Thursday. The Senate measure increases Ohio holidays to ten, five of which fall on Monday and provide state and local government employees with a string of three-day weekends throughout the year.

Other Monday holidays are President's Day (third Monday in February), Memorial Day (last Monday in May), Labor Day (first Monday in September), and Columbus Day (second Monday in October).

Ohio changed Veterans' Day back to Nov. 11 from a Monday last year.

Working mothers not harming tots

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — An Ohio State University researcher says a study started two years ago shows there is no discernible difference in the development of babies of working mothers.

But it does indicate, says Ellen Rozelle Hock, that if a woman stays home only out of a sense of duty, her dissatisfaction will show up in her maternal and family attitudes.

"Whether or not she works makes no difference," said Mrs. Hock, herself a mother of a 10-month-old son.

"But whether or not she feels fulfilled in what she does extends to other facets of her life, including her baby's development."

Mrs. Hock, an assistant professor in the OSU School of Home Economics' division of family and child development, said her study was funded by the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

She said her study is among the first to take an in-depth look at the effects of a mother's working on infants. Past studies dealt with older children.

Mrs. Hock and five assistants began the study in 1973 — "right after President Nixon vetoed day-care assistance for families" — with daily trips to two Columbus hospitals, interviewing a total of 1,432 mothers of new babies.

"By far the majority planned to stay home and care for their babies," Mrs. Hock said.

The researchers selected from the group 280 mothers of healthy newborns, half of whom planned to continue working.

The women were interviewed again in their homes when their babies were three months and eight months old.

What the evaluators looked for was the mother's attitude about her maternal role, her interest in having a career and how the baby was developing.

Mrs. Hock said no differences were found in the development of the babies.

Their adjustment and well-being appeared the same.

Both groups of women exhibited the same type of loving, maternal attitude, she said.

Of those mothers who chose to stay at home, some began to express dissatisfaction with their choices by the time their babies were three months old. The same women were "a great deal more career-oriented" by the time of the eighth-month interview, Mrs. Hock said.

As a result, the statistics have shifted and 60 per cent of the women now are working.

A need for achievement was the prime reason the working mothers gave for continuing their careers, Mrs. Hock said.

"In the past, working women have had to justify why they work," she observed. "Now, it's clear that a job is important to their self-fulfillment."

Mrs. Hock said she hopes HEW will use her data to set new policies for child care assistance.

Weather system pushed by Brown

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Clarence J. Brown, R-Ohio, urged his colleagues this week to help him convince Ford Administration officials to speed installation of a national weather warning system.

Brown of Urbana, Ohio, wrote a letter to fellow congressmen to encourage complete installation of VHF-FM broadcast stations by the National Weather Service within two years instead of five as now scheduled.

The stations would broadcast 24-hours a day and warn of impending weather disasters to 95 per cent of the nation's population.

Rounding out the holidays are the traditional ones of Christmas, New Year's, Independence Day, and Thanksgiving.

The House vote was close, 57-33, only seven more than needed for passage in the 99-member chamber.

Several members of the black caucus waxed eloquent on the bill, including Rep. James W. Ranking, D-25 Cincinnati, who said "our children need more than heroes with expertise in guns. They need heroes with a creative value system. They need heroes of hope, heroes of faith, and champions of love."

Rep. Thomas M. Bell, D-10 Cleveland, said black children as well as white need "someone to look up to. We don't have children, we just have little people. We can't afford childhood. We don't have a national leader to look up to."

At one point in the floor debate, sponsors played through the speaker system a tape of King's famous "I have a dream" speech to a national rally in Washington, D.C. not long before his death.

Visiting students filled the House galleries, many of whom were black. They let out a cheer when the favorable vote was announced, one girl shouting "Hallelujah!"

Opponents of the legislation — 25 Republicans and 8 Democrats — said they were voting against it because its cost, estimated variously from $2 million to more than $3 million.

Rep. John A. Galbraith, R-69 Maumee, said "we have a very hard pressed budget as it is," adding he thinks King's assassination, "tragic as it was," came too recently to be judged as to its place in history.

Rep. William G. Batchelder, R-93 Medina, raised questions about the late civil rights leader's use of tactics "that went beyond the law."

He said King, the night before he was killed, said he intended to lead a protest march the next day, even if prohibited by a court order. "I think it is a legal anomaly when we establish a legal holiday for one who advocated violating the law," Batchelder said.

During an otherwise routine day, wrapping up legislative activities until next week, the Senate approved without dissent and sent to the House a bill permitting townships to make transfers of their road maintenance and repair funds.

The Senate added its approval 29-2 to a House measure, completing passage, which lets municipalities waive competitive bidding on purchases of up to $2,500. The existing limit is $1,500. Sponsors said inflation has made the lower figure overly restrictive.

The House approved overwhelmingly two bills revising laws that license veterinarians and conforming state statutes with the Professional Engineers Registration Act.

Among new bills was a Senate proposal that would allow Ohioans convicted of drunk driving, at a judge's discretion, opt between jail and an approved driver education course within 30 days of conviction.

1973 Viet accords just scraps of paper

An AP News Analysis
By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

Calls in France, the United States and elsewhere for talks on "implementation of the 1973 Paris agreements" on Vietnam have an eerie sound of unreality, now that those agreements are in shambles.

The Viet Cong's Provisional Revolutionary Government—PRG—man in Paris indicates it's ready to negotiate. Indeed, on the basis of the terms it lays down, it is probably eager.

France, the original source of American woes in Indochina, has been campaigning for talks based on the 1973 accords, the suggestion seeming to be that the agreements would be implemented by observance of the article calling for a "National Council of Reconciliation and Concord."

The article stipulated a council of three equal segments representing the Saigon government, neutrals and the PRG side. Hypothetically there could be talks based on that article now, but actually that would be little more than a cosmetic exercise.

The PRG is saying now nothing different from what it said since its birth in 1969 as a vehicle for supporting a Viet Cong claim to legitimacy. What did the PRG demand then and what now?

It demanded and demands complete

Boats can be hired in Jamaica to fish for marlin, sailfish, wahoo, tuna, dolphin, bonito, barracuda and other fish.

departure of the Americans from the scene, which is just about accomplished, and the replacement of the "Nguyen Van Thieu clique."

President Thieu is gone, but the PRG-North Vietnamese attacks on his successor show clearly a claim to the right to say just what persons make up that "clique." Whatever southerners might now be acceptable as representatives of a Saigon regime and neutrals would negotiate in a capital surrounded by victorious North Vietnamese and Viet Cong and be looking down the barrels of Soviet weapons.

What's left of those 1973 accords for which the two principal negotiators, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and North Vietnamese Politburo member Le Duc Tho, were awarded Nobel Peace prizes?

Not much but shreds of paper. The four parties to the accords—Americans, North Vietnamese, South Vietnamese and Viet Cong—agreed in 1973 to halt all acts of force on ground or sea or in the air and forego all hostile acts of terror and reprisal.

The two sides in the South were to accept no introduction of troops, military advisers, armaments or war materiel except a one-for-one replacement of destroyed or damaged materiel.

The two sides in the South were to consult "in a spirit of national reconciliation and concord" and set up the Reconciliation Council of equal segments to operate on the principle of unanimity. That was to have been done in 90 days, so it's now two years overdue. In any case, the "unanimity principle" probably would have paralyzed it as it has so often paralyzed the United Nations Security Council.

Reunification of Vietnam was to be carried out "step by step" by peaceful means and without coercion. Both sides were to respect the Demilitarized Zone between North and South.

Violations were innumerable and blatantly conspicuous. Now what's left of South Vietnam faces a set of faits accomplis.

Early in May comes the 21st anniversary of Dien Bien Phu, where North Vietnam's Ho Chi Minh defeated France after seven bloody years of war. Now, after almost 30 years of fighting, would Hanoi be likely to surrender the long-sought fruits of it all? If there is hope for negotiation on the basis of the 1973 accords, why the almost panicky evacuation of South Vietnam by Americans, in such an atmosphere of hopelessness?

There has been a slowdown in the North Vietnamese-Viet Cong attack on Saigon, but that followed a predictable pattern and suggested a will to make the victory look a bit less than naked military conquest.

Perhaps there will be talks, perhaps even an agreement, but it most likely would be the agreement wanted by Hanoi, which holds all the initiative. Hanoi has said all along there must be only one, unified Vietnam and has made clear who it thinks should rule it.

Sanguillen leads victory

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer
Manny Sanguillen has had it. No more swinging at bad pitches. No kidding.
"We have too many good hitters in our lineup for me to keep chasing bad pitches," says Pittsburgh's carefree swinger. "I'm not going to swing at bad pitches anymore — I'm going to wait for my pitch."
The Pirate catcher was as good as his word Friday night. He waited for his pitch and when he didn't see anything he liked, he walked. When he did see something he liked he hit a home run in the seventh inning with a man on base and provided Bruce Kison with the margin to beat Steve Carlton.

"When I first started playing baseball I swung at every pitch — over my head, in the dirt," said Sanguillen. "But I'm a smarter ballplayer now and I'm going to wait."

Sanguillen has had a history of first-ball and bad-ball hitting. Last year, the catcher had only 12 unintentional walks all season.
In the other National League games, the Houston Astros beat the Cincinnati Reds 6-4; the San Diego Padres stopped the Atlanta Braves 5-3; the New York

Mets trimmed the Montreal Expos 5-3; the Chicago Cubs whipped the St. Louis Cardinals 4-3 and the Los Angeles Dodgers nipped the San Francisco Giants 6-5.

Sanguillen's homer backed the combined eight-hit pitching of Kison and Dave Giusti. The score was tied 1-1 going into the Pirate seventh when Richie Zisk reached base on an error by Philadelphia second baseman Dave Cash. Sanguillen followed with his home run into the left-field stands, coming off losing pitcher Carlton.

Kison, who boosted his record to 1-1, struck out six and allowed two walks but needed relief help from Giusti in the eighth. After an error and singles by Bob Boone and Jay Johnstone accounted for one run and put another runner at third, Giusti came in and got Alan Bannister to fly out, ending the inning.

NCAA members ponder cutbacks

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Armed with a wide-range of cost-cutting proposals supplied by delegates to its special meeting on the economy, the National Collegiate Athletic Association now will frame specific legislation to be considered by the full body at a convention almost certain to be called for August.
Presidents, faculty representatives and athletic directors representing each of the NCAA's three divisions studied the economic problem Thursday and Friday, and came up with answers that ranged from eliminating spring football practice to severely limiting recruiting trips and greatly reducing scholarship awards.

The one area in which there was almost total agreement was the motion by Robben W. Fleming, president of the University of Michigan, to convene a special mid-summer convention that would legislate economies for the member institutions.

"It seems to me that enough has been done here to warrant a special convention," said Fleming. "We have the advantage of momentum. We can avoid putting off action that would prevent implementation for another year."

The NCAA's annual convention is held in January. Only once before, in 1973, when the body was reorganized into three divisions, has a special convention been called.

The NCAA Council must approve the select meeting's call for a special convention, but NCAA President John Fuzak indicated that was almost a mere formality in this case.

Among the recommendations made by delegates to the select meeting was a proposal that would eliminate full-time recruiters, another limiting schools to three contacts with prospective student athletes, and one that would reduce scholarships in all sports.

Currently, schools are permitted 105 football grants and the Division I representatives recommended reduction of that figure to 90, with a maximum of 60 awards in any two years and no more than 35 in any single year. Basketball grants were reduced to 16, with a maximum of 10 in any two years and seven in any single year.

It was proposed that other sports have their total grants reduced from a current allowable total of 209 to 80. The maximum number of scholarships in all sports now available from any single school with an athletic program participating in all events is 340. Under the proposal, that total would shrink to 186.

Massengale leads open

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP)—Rick Massengale, who has learned to live with — and even thrive on — his golfing problems this season, has gone 10 shots under par at 134 and taken a two-shot after two rounds of the Tallahassee Open.

Massengale, who won only $14,193 in his disastrous 1974 season, broke out of six-way deadlock at the start of Friday's play by firing his second straight 67 on the 7,134-yard Killearn Golf and Country Club course.

Four fellow first-round leaders remained right behind him. John Toepel shot a 69 for a 136 total and second place, one shot ahead of Bobby Mitchell, Ralph Johnston and Steve Melnyk.

Astros top Reds under protest

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Astros reliever Ken Forsch spoke softly and didn't allow Cincinnati's big sticks to take away a 6-4 Astro victory Friday night — even if the game was played under Manager Sparky Anderson's protest.

Forsch, suffering from laryngitis, came on in the pressure-packed ninth inning to get a save and keep the Reds from whipping the Astros in the final inning for the fourth time.

"Tonight they almost did it again," Astros Manager Preston Gomez said. "You can't relax against a team like Cincinnati. They keep coming back."

Anderson's protest resulted from a seventh inning interference call from umpire Ed Vargo. Vargo called an automatic double play after he ruled that Reds' runner Merv Rettenmund interfered with Astros' shortstop Roger Metzger as he tried to make a double play.

"It was so obvious," Gomez said. "Rettenmund just went after Roger. He went way out of his way to take Roger out of the play. He (Metzger) couldn't even get rid of the ball."

Forsch's effort saved Larry Dierker's third victory in four decisions this season. Pat Darcy, 1-1, got the loss.

Houston did all its scoring in the sixth and seventh innings with three runs in each frame.

Darcy balked in Cesar Cedeño for the first run in the sixth and Astro third baseman Doug Rader's single scored another. Dierker's grounder brought home the third run.

Cincinnati rebounded with two runs in the seventh on Joe Morgan's two-run single. Pete Rose led off with a single and Dave Concepcion followed with a double to set up Morgan's hit.

Houston scored its last three runs in the seventh on Bob Watson's double, Rader's single and a sacrifice bunt by Metzger. Concepcion's single in the eighth drove in the Reds' final run.

Washington beats Braves

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — It has been said that the last 10 minutes are the only ones that really count in a pro basketball game. The Washington Bullets don't see it that way.

The Bullets came out roaring Friday night, ripping off fast breaks and forcing Buffalo out of its normal patterns as they beat the Braves 115-96 to clinch their National Basketball Association Eastern Conference semifinal series, 4-3.

Playoff series to determine the two conference champions begin Sunday, with Washington at Boston in the Eastern Conference and Chicago at Golden State in the Western Conference.

Washington grabbed a 4-3 advantage with 9:39 left to play in the opening period and never relinquished the lead while hitting half its shots and taking away Buffalo's torric running attack.

"They came out the way we should have come out," said Braves Coach Jack Ramsay. "They established the tempo with those early fast breaks and played very aggressively."

Coach K.C. Jones of Washington said the Bullets' game plan was to open up their offense and take control as soon as possible.

Denver tops Hoosiers

By The Associated Press
One coach named Brown was smiling in victory, the other was gracious in defeat in the American Basketball Association semifinal series.

In Denver, a smiling Larry Brown basked in the glow of his team's 126-109 victory over Indiana here Friday night and said, "Now it's a three-game series."

In St. Louis, Kentucky Coach Hubie Brown praised the performance of the Spirits of St. Louis, who fashioned a 103-97 victory over his Colonels.

Larry Brown, the ABA coach of the year in his first season at Denver, was breathing easier after the victory tied the best-of-seven Western Division playoff series at 2-2 and ended the Nuggets' losing string at two games.

"We must be ready to play Sunday (in game No. 5 at Denver)," the youthful Brown said, "because the Pacers could pop right back and beat us the way we beat them tonight."

TRACK HOPEFULS — Washington's Greg Marti (above) and Miami Trace's Bill Warnock (right) will be tuning up Saturday in the Unioto Relays in preparation for Tuesday's big SCOL meet at Unioto. Marti should finish near the top in the pole vault and the high jump and he may even threaten the league mark (12'-9") in the vault after having cleared 13-feet in practice. Warnock has been Trace's main point-getter in the sprints and he should pick up some points Tuesday for the Panther thinclads.

MT, Lions ready for league meet

BY PHIL LEWIS
Record-Herald Sports Editor

Rain cancelled Thursday's scheduled showdown between county rivals Miami Trace and Washington High Schools, but the Blue Lion and Panther thinclads will have one last chance to tune up for the upcoming league meet, when the two teams hit the road Saturday to participate in the Unioto Relays.

Defending South Central Ohio League champion Circleville Tigers, who have soundly defeated both Trace and Washington in dual meets this year, are still the overwhelming favorites to repeat last year's performance.

The Tiger trackmen under the direction of coach James Lint still hold the best times and marks in the league to date. In a survey two weeks ago Circleville held the best marks for the young season in seven events and the picture still looks bright for the defending champions.

Hillsboro is picked to give Circleville the most trouble in Tuesday's league affair on the Unioto oval with Wilmington picked as a long shot while turning in best times in most of the sprints. Miami Trace, Washington, Unioto and Greenfield will probably bring up the rear and all four are turning up in the Saturday's preview at Unioto.

In the Pole vault, Jim Cordle of Circleville has cleared 13-feet, but that vault was during the indoor season making Washington's Greg Marti the favorite in that event with a 12'-6" vault. Cordle and Marti met in a dual meet at Washington a week ago and the Circleville vaulter failed to place with Marti taking the event just ahead of teammate Jim Runnels.

Circleville looks strong in the high jump with Frank Plescia and basketballer George Moore both jumping around 6-feet. Washington's Marti could also be a threat in that event with a season best jump of 6-feet even to set a school record.

In the weights, several trackmen could come up the winners. Circleville's Scott Bowman has the best mark in the discus, but Washington's Jeff Brown Miami Trace's Ron Warnock and Greenfield's Tom Adams should give Bowman some trouble.

Garth Cox feted at OSU banquet

Former Washington Senior High School football standout Garth Cox received mention at Ohio State's annual scholar-athlete banquet Wednesday.

The banquet honors Buckeye varsity athletes, who register a grade point average of 3.00 or better. Champion driver Tim Moore won the top award this year with a 3.89 average.

Cox a freshman offensive lineman for the Buckeyes, registered a 3.00 in his first year of college to giving him an invitation to the banquet. Sophomore quarterback Jim Pacentia led the O-State gridders with a 3.84 grade point average.

Final Legion tryouts Sunday

American Legion Post 25 will hold its final tryouts 1 p.m. Sunday at the Washington Senior High School field for this season's baseball team.

First year coach Ron Helmick will begin selecting his roster after the tryouts and Legion spokesman Dick Kelley said most of the positions are still up for grabs. He urged all prospective area ball players between the ages of 16-18 to tryout Sunday.

Tigers trip Red Sox

By The Associated Press
Baseball is a summer game, which is unfortunate for Mickey Lolich. And the game can take some strange turns, which proved unfortunate for Luis Tiant.

The temperature in Detroit at gametime was 43 degrees, working weather for Lolich, the Tigers left-hander who surrendered four hits and raised his record to 3-0 with a 1-0 victory over Tiant and the Red Sox Friday night.

Tiant was pitching perfect baseball for Boston and Lolich was just a couple of pitches behind. Tiant had retired the first 14 Tiger batters when rookie Dan Meyer stepped to the plate with two out in the fifth.

It was a classic confrontation between a crafty veteran and a raw rookie. But this time Tiant was too cagy for his own good. He served up a change-up, which Meyer slammed into the right-field stands for what proved to be the only run in the Tigers' triumph.

"It was my fault," said Tiant, who finished with a twohitter. "I tried to fool him ... I can't do much about it. That's the way the game goes. Sometimes you pitch great and lose and sometimes you pitch lousy and win."

other Sponge Rubber plants in Shelton and one in Derby. Zelle said the destroyed plant was the largest.

A federal indictment returned Wednesday in New Haven said dynamite and gasoline were used to destroy the plant.

Among those indicted was Charles Moeller, president of Ohio Decorative Products of Spencerville, Ohio, parent firm of Sponge Rubber. He and eight others were arrested Thursday and Friday. One of those indicted, Albert Coffey of Butler, Pa. remained at large.

All 10 indicted by the grand jury, except Moeller, also face state charges.

Zelle, of St. Paul, Minn. said the insurance policy stipulates that a claim must be filed within 60 days of the incident prompting it. That period expires Wednesday.

He also said Protection Mutual would conduct an exhaustive investigation and decide within 60 days whether to accept or reject the claim.

$62 million insurance claim filed in plant fire

SHELTON, Conn. (AP) — An insurance claim of $62.6 million has been filed in connection with the destruction of a rubber products plant here.

The claim, filed Friday, was made two days after 10 men were indicted on conspiracy and bombing charges in connection with the explosions and fire on March 1 that reduced the $10 million plant of Sponge Rubber Products Co. to rubble.

Federal authorities indicated Friday that an insurance claim was the motive behind the blast, the biggest arson case in FBI history.

The claim is for more than $37 million for business loss, more than $14 million for contents of the plant and more than $10 million for the building, said Lawrence Zelle, an attorney for Protection Mutual Insurance Co. of Park Ridge, Ill., which held the policy on the Shelton plant.

He said Friday night that the total was the most that could be paid under the policy, which also covered four

PPG may close plant

BARBERTON, Ohio (AP)—PPG Industries, which closed a soda ash plant here because it couldn't meet Environmental Protection Agency standards, said its chemical plant may have to be shut by the end of the year.

G. John Lambillotte, works manager at the plant, said Friday that EPA antipollution regulations in effect since January make it impossible to burn Ohio's high-sulphur coal. He said there's not enough natural gas or oil and low-sulphur coal is too expensive.

About 1,000 hourly and salaried workers are employed at the facility.

PPG closed its soda ash plant here two years ago. That closing cost the jobs of 1,000 workers.

Correction

A typographical error in Monday's Record-Herald listed Michael D. Baker of Jeffersonville, who was bitten by a dog on the upper lip, Saturday, while visiting at 30 Charity Court, as age 13. The boy is age 3.

Opening lead — queen of clubs.

It sometimes takes a particular succession of bids and plays for a deal to reach a dramatic conclusion. That is exactly what happened in this case where West made a shaky double of North's preemptive three diamond bid and South brought the contract home in magnificent style.

East won the club queen with the king, cashed the ace, and shifted to the ten of spades. This was covered by the king and ace, and West returned the queen of hearts, taken by East with the ace.

Winners Tuesday at the Washington Duplicate Bridge Club were Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Wright with a score of 74. They were followed by Dr. Norbert Nissimov and Bill Horn, who had 69, while Dr. and Mrs. K. K. Burriss finished with 61 for third place. There were five full tables and par was 56.

Hopeful News in Medicine:

Speaking of Your Health...

LESTER L. COLEMAN, M.D.

Exercise in the Office

There may no longer be any reason for the busy executive, male or female, to say there is no time to exercise.

The excuse for not being able to get to the gym because it is time-consuming is understandable. Today, however, many executives who take an in-office sandwich and coffee lunch are now taking advantage of a bright new idea in exercising.

Barbara Pearlman, of New York City, is an energetic enthusiast of home exercising. She has devised a new system of stretching, muscle relaxing, and warm-up exercises which she brings to the office of the busy executive.

Dozens of people working at a hectic, frenetic pace are taking advantage of her in-office exercise routines. Besides increasing the tone of muscles, there is a definite reduction of the tension that builds up during a typical office day.

Ms. Pearlman has trained exercise therapists who are now using her techniques in other parts of the country.

More and more people are directing their energies to removing the pollution that has invaded our lives.

Young people, particularly, have consolidated their energies to attack factories, power plants and garbage disposal systems that pour polluted gases and soot into our atmosphere.

The harsh, foul-smelling chemicals that affect our lungs and our hearts are no longer accepted. Community forces have become a powerful factor in removing the polluters and preventing the mass contamination.

The efforts of youth in this direction are singularly interesting because, for the moment, they have the least at stake, from a medical point of view.

Teams of young people now report evidence of contamination of our streams, our rivers, our land, and our air. Only when legislation follows their good instinct can our earth return to its rightful heritage of freedom from pollution.

DR. LESTER L. COLEMAN has prepared a special booklet entitled, "Pay Attention to Your Heart." For your copy, send 25 cents in coin and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Lester L. Coleman, M.D., (Heart booklet), P.O. Box 3178, Grand Central Station, New York City 10017. Please mention the booklet by title.

JOLLY JILLS 4-H

The annual Mother's Tea was held at the Extension office by the Jolly Jills 4-H Club. A spring theme was used along with the 4-H colors of green and white, carried out by all committees. The seventh meeting preceded the party; this showed Mothers a little more about the club. This meeting was opened by Dale Williams and pledges were led by Teresa Dean. In answer to the roll call, each member introduced her guest. After calling the roll, Lisa Jackson also read the minutes.

A health report entitled, "Caution, Mower Power" was given by Janelle Meredith. The members decided to have a bake sale, and the date will be announced later, sometime in May.

Following the meeting, a poem entitled "What Spring Means to Mother" was read by Bridget Meredith. A game, using spring poems, was enjoyed by all.

The tables were decorated with the green and white theme. Place mats, name cards and paper roses at each place had been made by the committee. These were presented to each Mother. More roses had been arranged in vases which centered the tables.

The punch table also carried the theme. The spring colors were continued by using various colored fruits in every way possible. All Mothers enjoyed the evening which was a success for everyone.

The next meeting will be May 12th at the home of Kellie Mick.
